

Intellectual Property Rights

Although many people will automatically think of patents and trade marks, the term is much wider. It includes copyright and the rights that exist in computer software. It covers industrial designs.

If you have invented something, or developed an improved version, you may want to show it to people for comments or to prove it works. You do not want to allow them to simply copy it so an agreement is essential.

Perhaps you already have a registered design, or an unregistered design, and you want to allow someone to manufacture it either in a trial or commercially.

We can assist you with agreements and advice to protect your rights.
